

BRAND IDENTITY SYSTEM · JUNE 2025

Looppr.

Five logo directions, a complete colour system, typography pairing, taglines, and brand patterns — for the on-demand laundry marketplace built for Series A.

DESIGNER'S NOTE
Claude Design

"The brief calls for the logo equivalent of a Nike swoosh — a mark that earns meaning over time and works equally at 16px and 10 feet. I've developed all five directions from the brief, plus a clear recommendation. The strongest marks lean into abstraction: a shape specific enough to be owned, simple enough to be timeless."

A ✓ CHOSEN DIRECTION

The Loop Mark

A single continuous stroke forming an organic, non-circular loop. The end point nears but does not close the start — a subtle tension point that implies the loop is always in motion. Not a circle. More like a path mid-journey.

Works at 16px. Works embossed on a laundry bag. Works on the side of a building. The kind of mark that earns meaning over time — like the Nike swoosh earned its meaning.

B Folded Cloth Loop

A loop whose halves are visibly layered — the faded top arc (back of the fold) gives the solid front arc a sense of depth and fabric.

D The Thread Path

A continuous thread connects three nodes — pickup, wash, return — mapping the brand story in a single flowing mark. The S-curve implies perpetual motion.

E The Clean Drop

A water droplet that reveals a loop on closer inspection — the circular opening at the top makes the cycle reference explicit inside the clean metaphor.

16px Favicon

- ✓ Single stroke — works in any single colour including embossing, laser engraving, and stitching
- ✓ Abstract enough to be category-agnostic, specific enough to be ownable
- ✓ Tension point implies perpetual motion — the mark itself tells the brand story without explanation
- ✓ No resemblance to existing laundry, delivery, or on-demand brands — fully ownable

Subhead 24pt

Hero / Cover

Section titles

Text / body

DM SANS - BODY / UI - WEIGHT 300-800

Your clothes are back. Clean, folded, and exactly the way you like them. Marcus dropped them off at 7:42am — 18 minutes early.

Body 16 400 - line-height 1.6

UI 14 500 - line-height 1.5

LABEL 11 600 - spaced caps - 0.12em

BRAND VOICE IN TYPE

Confident, not bossy
"Your clothes are back." — not "Please note that delivery has been completed."

Warm, not cutesy
"Marcus picked up your bag." — not "Your laundry is on an adventure"

Clear, not corporate
"We messed up. Here's a free pickup." — not "We apologize for any inconvenience."

05 — TAGLINES

Five options explored

 Laundry, handled.

Direct - premium - Apple-energy RECOMMENDED

The loop is closed.

Statement - confident - final - campaigns

Clean comes back.

Movement - cycle - warm - friendly

Drop it. Get it back clean.

Action - clear - app-native - onboarding

Your laundry's in the loop.

Playful - brand-referential - social

 Looppr

Laundry, handled.

Pickup - wash - fold - deliver

WHY THIS WORKS

"Handled" does enormous work: it's confident, it implies the user is off the hook, and it works as a past tense ("Laundry: handled.") and a future promise ("We handle laundry"). Short enough for an App Store screenshot. Premium enough for investor materials.

06 — BRAND PATTERNS

Three directions

Loop Scatter

The loop mark at varied scales and rotations. Use for bags, boxes, app backgrounds, loading screens.

Thread Waves

Flowing S-curves suggest fabric and motion. Use for receipts, packaging tissue paper, email headers.

Double-R Grid

The monogram mark repeated in a structured grid. Use for uniforms, embossed stationery, premium packaging.
